As a puppies stomach is much more delicate, their diet needs to be different to the diet of a fully grown dog. Therefore we offer a dedicated range of puppy food in which the meat to bone mix is of a fine grade but still uses the same great ingredients.

Puppies can require around twice as much food for the first few months of their lives, with the food consumption gradually decreasing as they grow. Every breed of puppy is different, so it is difficult for us to provide exact advice, but you can be assured the new addition to your family will let you know if they are still hungry.
